HOUSE PREPARES TO PASS VINSON BILL FOR A 'TREATY NAVY'

Little Opposition To Enactment, Democratic Leaders Say

TO FIGHT IT IN SENATE

Peace Organizations Plan For Final Battle Against The Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 30.—With preparedness the sentiment sweeping Congress as war clouds gathered in the Far East, the House today prepared to pass the $500,000,000 Vinson bill for a "treaty navy."

Democratic leaders asserted there was comparatively little opposition to enactment of the measure which emerged from the House Naval Affairs Committee by a unanimous vote.

Approval of President Roosevelt to the plan to build the navy to full strength, allowed by the Washington and London Treaty—and keep it there—apparently crumpled the opposition of the once strong "little navy bloc."

Having given up hope of halting the measure in the House, peace organizations were organizing a national campaign in the hope of killing it in the Senate. The measure was enlarged when the Naval Affairs Committee decided to propose an amendment authorizing "treaty strength" aviation forces in the navy.

The program calls for 1184 planes at a cost of $95,000,000. With passage of the measure a naval expansion program costing more than $700,000,000 will be under way. The House has already provided funds for work on four cruisers in the regular supply bill and the $235,000,000 Public Works grant makes possible the building of 32 ships.

The Vinson bill authorizes 102 ships to be laid down over a period of five years.

Even with this huge building program, the navy will lag behind Great Britain and Japan for several years. Under the treaty all ships could be constructed by December 31, 1936.

Ball and Dance Here To Mark Roosevelt Anniversary

Two affairs are to be held in Bristol tonight in connection with the nationwide celebration of the 52nd birthday anniversary of President Roosevelt.

In St. Mark's hall a large ball will be staged and it is expected that the capacity of the hall will be taxed to the utmost.

Music will be furnished by a first class orchestra.

A dance will be given in St. Ann's auditorium, Logan street, under the auspices of the Loggia Donna Antonella Grande and there will be dancing from eight until 12.

Hafele Home at Croydon Is Scene of Pinocle Party

CROYDON, Jan. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hafele, Neshaminy Road, Croydon Manor, entertained at cards Saturday evening. Pinocle was enjoyed, and prizes awarded to Mrs. Harold Adams and William Barmaster. Refreshments were enjoyed.

Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Adams, Mr. and Mrs. William Barmaster, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer S. Storms.

M. E. Supper Committee Planning Annual Event

Committees have been named to have charge of and arrange for the annual Martha Washington supper to be given in the banquet hall of the Bristol M. E. Church, Saturday evening, February 24th.

The Epworth League will solicit the donations for the supper.

Tickets and publicity will be handled by Serrill D. Detlefsen, Doron Green, Howard Snoyer, Roy Fry, William Thompson, Miss Annie Heritage, Miss Beulah Stackhouse and Jack Lynn.

Supper committee: Mrs. Lewis Trude, Mrs. William P. Betz, Mrs. Harry Daniels, Mrs. Doron Green, Mrs. Philip Arensmeyer, Mrs. Richard Winslow, Mrs. Carrie McBrien, Miss May Snoyer, George M. VanSant, Livingston Joyce, James S. Douglass, John Brehm, William Winslow, G. A. Coons, William Kershaw.

These committees will meet Wednesday evening in the church at nine o'clock. All members are requested to be present so that complete plans may be formulated. Others wishing to volunteer their services are invited to attend the meeting.

BURIAL TODAY

Samuel Rizzo, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Rizzo, of 7128 State Road, Tacony, will be buried in Bristol Cemetery this afternoon. Death occurred for the child on Saturday. The parents were formerly residents of this borough. The funeral will be from the Rizzo home, and burial will be in charge of Luigi Galzerano, Tacony, funeral director.

ATTACK TREATY OF VERSAILLES

Berlin, Germany, Jan. 30.—A slashing attack upon the Treaty of Versailles as a document which "perpetrated hatred" was delivered by Chancellor Adolf Hitler today at a special session of the Reichstag commemorating the first anniversary of his rise to power in the Reich.

COMPLETE FRENCH CABINET

Paris, France, Jan. 30.—Premier designate, Eduard Daladier, after many hours of anxious effort, completed the formation of a new cabinet today while communist mobs staged serious riots which completely paralyzed the streets of downtown Paris. While police were struggling to suppress the disorders which started with a chauffeurs' demonstration, Daladier submitted to President LeBrun his list of new ministers, which was expected to be approved immediately.

FIRE THREATENS SWARTHMORE

Swarthmore, Jan. 30.—Fanned to great intensity by icy winds, fire early today attacked a group of houses on the Swarthmore College campus and for a time threatened to jump to the college building. Handicapped by near zero temperatures and breaking hose lines, firemen experienced difficulty in bringing the blaze under control. Firemen from Media, Chester and surrounding communities responded to the alarm which was sounded when officials feared sparks would ignite the institution's main structure.

SOVIET BALLOON ESTABLISHES RECORD

Unofficial World's Altitude Mark Set At 12,790 Miles

THREE CIVIL EXPERTS

MOSCOW, Jan. 30.—(INS)—The Soviet stratosphere balloon "Osoviakhim No. One" established a new unofficial world's altitude record of 20,600 meters (about 12,790 miles) today and then, since heavy clouds made further observation impossible began to descend.

Three civil aviation experts aboard radioed at 8:59 a. m., G. M. T. (3:59 a. m. E. S. T.) their intention to come down. Army planes immediately took off to search for the craft and guide it down.

MOSCOW, Jan. 30.—(INS)—Three Soviet civil aviation experts making a surprise balloon ascent into the stratosphere today reported by radio they had reached a height of 20 kilometers (12,412 miles), thereby establishing a new world's altitude record.

Officials of the Frounze airport received the message at 8:00 a. m., G. M. T. (3:00 a. m. E. S. T.), two hours and 20 minutes after the craft had taken the air secretly near Koutzevo, about eight miles from Moscow.

The flyers reported they intend to ascend still higher, and gave no indication of when they expected to land. Despite the bitter sub-zero and foggy weather, the flight, first stratosphere expedition ever attempted in winter, appeared to be progressing favorably.

The previous greatest altitude ever reached by man was 19 kilometers (11.8 miles), a mark set by three Soviet army balloonists last September 30. Since Russia is not a member of the International Aeronautic Federation, however, the mark was not officially recognized.

The officially recognized world record is 61,237 feet (about 11.5 miles) set by Lieut. Commander Thomas G. W. Settle, of the United States Navy, and Maj. Chester Fordney, U. S. M. C. in a flight from Akron, Ohio, last November 21.

The big balloon, the "Osoviakhim No. One," has a capacity of more than 200,000 cubic feet and carries a metal

OUR DEBT PROBLEM

AMERICAN TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE, INC.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
January 17, 1934

How much is a billion dollars? A dollar a minute since the birth of Christ to the present day is a billion dollars. The Federal government is approaching an indebtedness of $30,000,000,000. The interest on these bonds before they are paid will probably equal the principal. It is conservative to estimate that the taxpayers must lay down $2.50 (two dollars and fifty cents) per second for two thousand years to pay off the public debt as it stands at present. This statement applies to the public debt only and does not include operating expenses of government.

We are heavy defaulters in our public obligations. The Federal government faces a deficit of $7,000,000,000; the states and sub-divisions almost $10,000,000,000.

The operating cost of Federal government is running around $6,000,000,000 and states and sub-divisions $12,000,000,000 or more per annum.

On the other side of the ledger is a multiplicity of tax levies, most of which have reached the point of diminishing returns and have resulted in abandoned property; complete cessation of all new private enterprises; slowing down of business and a gradual process of erosion has set in. We have at least $5,000,000,000 of public bonds in default, mostly local issues and many state and local authorities have defaulted in their constitutional obligations to citizens such as adequate schools, police, fire and other facilities.

The government has taken over the responsibility of taking care of citizens, financing farms, home, industry, commerce and is constantly enlarging its jurisdiction, all of which takes money and more money.

Any increase in rates of present levies will result in diminishing returns.

These are the conditions that confront Congress and all state and local taxing authorities. It is the most tremendous tax problem that has faced any government in any age. ****

FALLSINGTON BOARD HAS ELECTION OF OFFICERS

E. L. Saylor Names President of Community Group; Library Directors Meet

PARTY IS CONDUCTED

FALLSINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Community Board met Monday evening and elected officers for the year.

Those named: President, Evan L. Saylor; secretary, Mrs. Frank Hartman; treasurer, Joseph White. Other members are: Mrs. Stephen Woolston, Mrs. Raymond Pope, William Kellett and Albert Hibbs. A number of improvements have been added to the community building, and there is $200 still in treasury.

SELLERSVILLE WORK HALTED FOR TIME

Skilled Workers Out of Employment Unless More Money is Allocated

PAY HAS BEEN DOUBLED

SELLERSVILLE, Jan. 30.—Unless another allotment of money is received from the Civil Works Administration within the next few days, a number of skilled laborers of Sellersville and Perkasie will be out of work.

Since a Federal order issued to double the pay of skilled laborers, which increased the pay of men on a painting project here, the money allotment was exhausted almost immediately. Word was received from County Administrator John S. Roberts, Bristol, that Federal funds for the project had been dispersed and that men who have been painting the walls

Fire Discovered In Barry Place Residence

Noticing smoke issuing from the flooring around the chimney of their home when about to retire last night about 11 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Scott, 249 Barry Place, endeavored to extinguish the evident fire beneath and cracked noise continued and a phone call was sent to fire headquarters.

Chief McGee and a crew of men responded in quick time and found it necessary to remove part of the woodwork around the chimney in order to extinguish the still smoldering fire in the timbers and woodwork.

Petrucio-DeLissio Nuptials Performed at Church Here

A pretty wedding took place in St. Ann's Catholic Church, Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, when Miss Mary Josephine DeLissio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas DeLissio, 1010 Trenton avenue, became the bride of John Petrucio, 424 Lafayette street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marcelino Romagnolo, and the wedding march was played by Miss Frances Tamborella, Dorrance street.

The bride was attended by Miss Victoria DeLissio, Beaver street, and the best man was John Sozio, Washington street. The ringbearer was Nicholas Centafante, 1112 Wood street.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin, fashioned on Princess lines. The bodice was made of lace with lace puffed sleeves to the elbow and satin to the wrist. The long skirt ended in a train. The bridal veil was of tulle, cap shape and trimmed with a crown of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and carnations.

The bridesmaid wore light blue tulle, fashioned on close-fitting lines. A pink maine turban trimmed with satin ribbon and a veil, pink satin slippers and long lace gloves, completed her outfit, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The ring-bearer was attired in a black tuxedo suit and carried the ring on a white satin pillow. The couple left later for New York. The bride travelled in a turquoise blue crepe dress trimmed with black transparent velvet and wore black accessories. Upon their return they will reside at 424 Lafayette street.

COLD WAVE STILL GRIPS BRISTOL AND VICINITY

Temperature Record At Nine And Six Above Here

MT. POCONO IS COLDEST

Pennsylvania thermometers today recorded new record breaking lows as a mid-winter cold snap huffed and puffed its frigid winds the length and breadth of the state. Slight relief was in sight for today. Only one fatality had been attributed to the cold in the state. Scores of accidents were recorded, however, in the larger communities and hundreds of cases of frost-bite were treated by physicians and doctors.

The cold wave still grips Bristol and today the mercury went even lower than it did yesterday, but the stiff west wind did abate a trifle.

The mercury last night at six o'clock stood at 14 and remained there until eight o'clock when it dropped to 13. At 11 o'clock it went another degree lower as also did at midnight. The mercury stood at 10 at two o'clock this morning and at seven it registered nine above at the greenhouses of Jacob C. Schmidt, Otter street.

In various sections of the borough the mercury registered lower and in several places it stood at six above.

Bristol Consolidated firemen, near midnight, in fighting a blaze on Barry Place, had difficulty with the valves on the booster pump freezing.

George Johnson, a 74 year old Philadelphia truck driver, was frozen to death in that city where the temperature sank to 10 during the night and was slowly rising today.

The coldest point in the eastern section of the state was at Mt. Pocono when the mercury sank to 14 below zero yesterday. Government workers were confined to the barracks after three of them suffered frozen ears.

At Harrisburg the temperature was six above while at Pittsburgh the mercury fell below zero for the first time this year.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 30.—The airplane bearing John Dillinger, captured Indiana desperado, from Tucson, Arizona, was scheduled to arrive at Municipal Airport here this afternoon. A squad of heavily armed police were assigned to meet the plane and escort Dillinger and his four Indiana police guards to East Chicago where the bandit faces trial for murder and bank robbery.

Richard Gennett Dies At Croydon in 89th Year

Richard Gennett, said to be the only survivor of the 15th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, died at his late residence in Croydon on Sunday. The deceased was a former resident of Bristol, having made his home for a time at 321 Taft street.

Funeral will be made from a funeral home in Riverside, N. J., and friends may call Wednesday evening at seven o'clock at 307 Bridgeboro street, Riverside.

A wife and three children survive. Gennett participated in all engagements. He was a member of the Shiloh Post, G. A. R., Burlington, N. J. Gennett was the great-grandson of "Notorious Citizen, Richard Gennett," who came to America in 1792 as a minister to this country from France, and who later married Katherine Clinton, daughter of Governor Clinton, New York.

Gennett was in his 89th year.

CROYDON LODGE HAS MEMBERSHIP OF 82

Neshaminy Council, No. 301, Degree of Pocahontas, Organized Aug. 18, 1928

WON MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

This is one of a series of articles in which an effort has been made to record the history of various organizations in this area. Some idea of that which has been accomplished by the organizations is also given and as much data is published as has been available. The information upon which the articles are based has been furnished by those still active in the organizations.

Article III.

The Neshaminy Council, No. 301, Degree of Pocahontas, might well feel proud of its present membership of 82, especially when it is learned that practically the entire membership is in good standing in these trying times. One of the boasts, and a well-merited one, of this beneficial organization, located in Croydon, is that nearly 100 per cent of the women are out of the "red" as far as lodge dues are concerned.

It was in August of 1928 that Mrs. Ann Winkler, of Roxborough, visited Croydon, and was instrumental in having this council organized. Mrs. Winkler, long a member of the Degree of Pocahontas, and a most ardent worker in the cause, is lovingly known as the "mother" of Neshaminy Council.

The Croydon aggregation, consisting of 30 charter members, took their name from the old Neshaminy Council of that order here in Bristol. The local council went out of existence some years ago. The new council was instituted on August 18, 1928.

The organization got off to a flying start and the roster was enlarged. Interest increased with the membership, and the Council flourished from the beginning.

At the time of the inception of the Council, Mrs. Lillian Doyle became keeper of wampum, which office she holds to this day, having served thus far for 5½ years. The next two oldest officers in point of years of service are Mrs. James Grew, secretary, and Mrs. Anna Still, collector of wampum, these two having taken their respective offices in April of 1929.

Such excellent strides were made in membership, that about one year ago Neshaminy Council was presented with a large silk American flag and standard, for securing the greatest number of members in a six months' period. This was the gift of the Great Council of Pennsylvania. For the same achievement the Council received two gifts of $5 each from the Membership Drive Committee, which includes Philadelphia and vicinity.

Each year this organization is represented at the state convention, the delegates bringing back new ideas and increased interest in the order.

A degree team is being organized at the present time. Uniforms have been presented to the members of this team, these being the typical Indian costume used by such teams. The degree team numbers about 21 members.

On each Thursday evening there are seen about 50 per cent of the membership gathered at the fire station, in Croydon, for the weekly meeting.

In games prizes were awarded to William Roarty, Marie Jean White and Louis Borella. William Roarty showed a moving picture which was enjoyed by all the children.

TRAINING CWA MEN TO GIVE FIRST AID TO THOSE INJURED

Three Hours Each Week To Be Devoted To Classes

ONE CLASS OPENS HERE

One Man Selected From Each Group Of Ten

A group of CWA workers selected from each project in Bucks County, employing 10 or more men, began training yesterday in accident prevention and first aid methods.

Training classes opened in Municipal Building, Bristol; Moose Hall, Doylestown; Borough Council Chamber, Quakertown.

One man was selected from each project employing 10 or more men and this selected group will be instructed three hours each week.

At the request of the Federal Civil Works Administration officials the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross is preparing to train the men.

CWA employees in Bucks, Chester, Delaware and Montgomery counties will be the beneficiaries of the intensive training courses under the direction of Earl L. Jackson, director of first aid and life saving in Southeastern Pennsylvania. Mr. Jackson will have the co-operation of experts whose services will be contributed by police and fire departments, the Bell Telephone Company and other business organizations.

The plan calls for the selection of a group of CWA workers to be schooled in first aid methods, and their subsequent assignment to accident prevention and life-saving duties on the various CWA projects in the southeastern tier of counties. On smaller jobs these safety inspectors, as they will be known, will perform regular CWA duties, but will be available in case of emergency.

Colonel J. Franklin McFadden, chairman of the Southeastern Chapter, American Red Cross, pointed out that the CWA will supply all materials and printed matter necessary to train and equip the safety inspectors, who will be paid standard CWA wages.

Those in charge of the schools in Bucks County include the following: Francis J. Hupp at Doylestown; Dr. Willard H. Tice, at Quakertown, and Dr. Raymond L. Tice at Bristol with Joseph Law as instructor.

Bucks County Lawyers Hold Their Annual Dinner

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 30.—The Bucks County Bar Association held its annual banquet at the Fountain House, on Saturday evening, with thirty-nine members present.

Several matters of importance were discussed at the business session preceding the banquet, which was presided over by Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, secretary-treasurer.

During the absence of President E. Wesley Keeler, on account of illness, Henry A. James, vice president of the association, acted as toastmaster, and short talks were given by Judge Hiram H. Keller, Judge Calvin S. Boyer and Colonel George Ross. Several of the younger members of the Bar also responded to toasts, including Wynne James, Jr., Charles W. Roberts, Jr., and Lawrence Monroe, the latter having been recently admitted to the Bucks County Bar.

Dignity was cast to the winds on this occasion, and fun and good fellowship held sway. The affair was conceded to be a "howling" success.

Those present were: President Judge Hiram H. Keller, Judge Calvin S. Boyer, Henry A. James, vice president, Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, secretary-treasurer, Asher K. Anders, Webster S. Achey, Oscar O. Bean, John P. Betz, Jr., Edward G. Biester, Hon. Clarence J. Buckman, J. Hibbs Buckman, Wesley Bunting, Willard S. Curtin, John L. DuBois, District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, Hugh B. ## EXPLANATION FOUND

No satisfactory explanation of the government's attempt to seize all the gold in the country has been given.

The move was linked with the administration's monetary policy, but its real purpose has remained more or less in the dark, as far as official explanation was concerned. The step was one never before taken by the United States. Yet, so swift and rapid have been unprecedented happenings in the last year, that no extraordinary amount of interest was occasioned, except, perhaps, in financial circles and on the part of those who had important gold holdings.

The step was taken chiefly as a means of permitting the government to stand in a safe and clear social position after the Congress shall have revalued the paper dollar in terms of gold. At that time, no doubt, it will be found that some far-sighted individuals have profited quite handsomely from the change. Political attack upon the administration will, under those conditions, be very likely. But the government will have its answer ready: "It is clear that we never intended any such thing; on the contrary, we issued an edict commanding everyone to turn in gold coin before we raised the price." The order is, therefore, a necessary political gesture.

NRA CHALLENGED

Constitutionality of the entire recovery act has been challenged in a case filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by the Garment Manufacturers Association, Inc., of New York, and several independent manufacturers. An injunction to prevent enforcement of the coat and suit code was asked.

In addition to the national interest attaching to the case because of its bearings upon the recovery act, there will be curiosity on the part of many to know what methods were used by those formulating the code in arriving at a dividing line as between East and West, in fixing its wage differentials. This is one of the points emphasized by the petitioners, and which, it is claimed, has resulted in great injustice being done eastern manufacturers.

The western territory, which provides for wages about 10 per cent under those for the East, embraces all of the garment industry in Chicago and west of that city, but takes in, also, Baltimore. The wage differentials enjoyed by the latter the complaint charges, gives Baltimore an unfair advantage over New York and other eastern centers. Baltimore shops were said to be working at capacity and pouring goods into New York. Abolition of the present code and substitution of a new one was asked.

Why Baltimore should have been included in the western territory is a puzzling question. It is one on which light needs to be shed.

University Economist Among Chicago Racket Defendants

CHICAGO ..... (I.L.N.)—

The unusual spectacle of a dignified college professor hailed before the bar of justice and accused of being hand-in-glove with the Windy City's underworld was witnessed here as trial of Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, former economist at the University of Chicago, and 17 co-defendants, all accused of racketeering complicity, opened in court of Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan.

Capone Circle

The trial, which promises to be a lengthy one, opened with Prosecutor Edwin Raber giving a resume of the testimony he will present to show that the defendants entered into a conspiracy with the object of gaining and keeping control of four of the city's industries—the laundry, cleaning and dyeing business, carbonated beverages and the linen supply business.

Besides Dr. Squires, defendants include Alderman Oscar Nelson, Aaron Sapiro, New York attorney and trade organizer, who once sued Henry Ford for alleged defamatory remarks about the Jewish race, and several officials of trade associations and labor unions. Although the name of Al Capone, former tycoon of the Chicago underworld, was called among those of the other defendants, the gang leader will not be present at the trial. Apparently Uncle Sam cannot spare him from Atlanta, where he is serving an eleven-year sentence in the Federal Penitentiary.

Sans Star Witness

A bad blow to the State's case was experienced when Edward J. Brundage, former Attorney General of Illinois, who was to be the prosecution's star witness, committed suicide on the eve of the trial. One of the points the State had hoped to prove is that Capone and Alderman Nelson together visited Brundage's office. What took place during the alleged visit must now remain forever a secret.

Professor Squires, according to the prosecution, came into the racket picture in 1929, when he acted as arbitrator between the cleaning and dyeing industry and the union. The State charges that the professor drifted from his role of mediator into whole-hearted conspiracy with union officials and other defendants and received 2 per cent of the gross proceeds of every cleaning plant, as well as a salary of $25,000 for "services of small consequences."

Paints Racket Methods

According to the State's charges, the defendants formed associations to control business, to fix prices and to create monopolies. Members were forced to join unions, either by boycotting of their business or by direct violence, such as breaking of windows, wrecking of trucks, throwing of acid, dynamiting and sometimes murder.

Tailors who did not belong to one of the various associations or "protection" systems could not have their clothes delivered to cleaning plants, says the State. "If they refused to join, acid was thrown upon the clothes in their shops or their shops were bombed."

Attorney Sapiro entered the picture in 1932, the prosecutor declared, being hired at a salary of $25,000 a year to advise the union men. In his role of counsel, it is charged, Sapiro approved a contract whereby $1 per week would be collected from the owner of each laundry truck in Chicago, a contract which, the prosecutor said, previously had been branded as having criminal aspects.

Capone Regime

Apart from the ultimate outcome of the trial, its progress will be interesting. For Prosecutor Raber proposes to tell the whole story of Chicago's crime problem from the beginning of the Capone era up to the present time.

More than three hundred witnesses are scheduled to testify for the State, many of them victims of the racketeering circle. The apparent willingness of these witnesses to aid the State indicates that Chicago is finally making a determined effort to rid itself forever of racketeers who so long fastened upon legitimate business.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

STRAWBERRIES are so plentiful that they are being sold at little greater cost than in the height of their summer season. Enjoy this winter treat while it lasts.

California navel oranges are at the height of their short season and they are particularly delicious to eat out of hand or in salads or desserts. For breakfast juice, Florida oranges are fine. Grapefruit continue plentiful.

Spinach and green beans are abundant and cheap. Broccoli though fine and inexpensive is not being used so much as it was. Cauliflower and new cabbage are cheap. Peas continue plentiful and good. Beets and carrots are particularly economical.

With Lent in the near future, favorite meat dishes should be enjoyed now though well cooked and seasoned fish is equally good.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following menus for your Sunday dinner.

Low Cost Dinner

Pan-browned Chopped Beef
Mashed Potatoes

SALVATION ARMY'S PARIS RECEPTION IS A GALA AFFAIR

By Nadia de Beaud
(L. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS—(INS)—I noted at the recent big reception of the Salvation Army here many very smart women, for this is a much favored charity. Among the patronesses was Mrs. Arnaud Faure, the former Constance Hart of San Francisco, who wore one of the new close fitting fur capes, which give women this season an old-fashioned silhouette that is charming. Her gown of brown velvet, of walking length, had long sleeves, and over this she had a short mink cape. A brown velvet hat tilted well off the face, completed the ensemble.

The tea was organized by the Countess M. Tolstoy, who was a Miss Frothingham, known for her unusual war work. She wore a conservatively cut mink coat.

EXPLANATION FOUND

No satisfactory explanation of the government's attempt to seize all the gold in the country has been given.

The move was linked with the administration's monetary policy, but its real purpose has remained more or less in the dark, as far as official explanation was concerned. The step was one never before taken by the United States. Yet, so swift and rapid have been unprecedented happenings in the last year, that no extraordinary amount of interest was occasioned, except, perhaps, in financial circles and on the part of those who had important gold holdings.

The step was taken chiefly as a means of permitting the government to stand in a safe and clear social position after the Congress shall have revalued the paper dollar in terms of gold. At that time, no doubt, it will be found that some far-sighted individuals have profited quite handsomely from the change. Political attack upon the administration will, under those conditions, be very likely. But the government will have its answer ready: "It is clear that we never intended any such thing; on the contrary, we issued an edict commanding everyone to turn in gold coin before we raised the price." The order is, therefore, a necessary political gesture.

NRA CHALLENGED

Constitutionality of the entire recovery act has been challenged in a case filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by the Garment Manufacturers Association, Inc., of New York, and several independent manufacturers. An injunction to prevent enforcement of the coat and suit code was asked.

In addition to the national interest attaching to the case because of its bearings upon the recovery act, there will be curiosity on the part of many to know what methods were used by those formulating the code in arriving at a dividing line as between East and West, in fixing its wage differentials. This is one of the points emphasized by the petitioners, and which, it is claimed, has resulted in great injustice being done eastern manufacturers.

The western territory, which provides for wages about 10 per cent under those for the East, embraces all of the garment industry in Chicago and west of that city, but takes in, also, Baltimore. The wage differentials enjoyed by the latter the complaint charges, gives Baltimore an unfair advantage over New York and other eastern centers. Baltimore shops were said to be working at capacity and pouring goods into New York. Abolition of the present code and substitution of a new one was asked.

Why Baltimore should have been included in the western territory is a puzzling question. It is one on which light needs to be shed.

Sans Star Witness

A bad blow to the State's case was experienced when Edward J. Brundage, former Attorney General of Illinois, who was to be the prosecution's star witness, committed suicide on the eve of the trial. One of the points the State had hoped to prove is that Capone and Alderman Nelson together visited Brundage's office. What took place during the alleged visit must now remain forever a secret.

Professor Squires, according to the prosecution, came into the racket picture in 1929, when he acted as arbitrator between the Attorney Sapiro entered the picture in 1932, the prosecutor declared, being hired at a salary of $25,000 a year to advise the union men. In his role of counsel, it is charged, Sapiro approved a contract whereby $1 per week would be collected from the owner of each laundry truck in Chicago, a contract which, the prosecutor said, previously had been branded as having criminal aspects.

Capone Regime

Apart from the ultimate outcome of the trial, its progress will be interesting. For Prosecutor Raber proposes to tell the whole story of Chicago's crime problem from the beginning of the Capone era up to the present time.

More than three hundred witnesses are scheduled to testify for the State, many of them victims of the racketeering circle. The apparent willingness of these witnesses to aid the State indicates that Chicago is finally making a determined effort to rid itself forever of racketeers who so long fattened upon legitimate business.

SYNOPSIS

After three years in Europe, lovely Stanley Paige, young society girl, returns to New York. She phones Perry Deverest, who had been madly in love with her before she was rushed abroad following her father's death. Stanley, however, was not so sure of her heart at the time. Perry realizes, after seeing Stanley again, that he is still in love with her but steals himself against committing himself until his love is reciprocated. Stanley, on her own as long as she could remember, was never sure of what she wanted in life. Perry takes her to Nigel Stern's studio party where she meets handsome Drew Armitage, "who has a way with women." They fall in love on sight. The following day, they go driving in the country. Drew takes Stanley in his arms saying, "You're beautiful and you're mine!"

CHAPTER SIX

Three hours later when Drew left Stanley he drove straight to his garage, left his car and walked six blocks east to Dennis St. John's apartment. He would much rather have gone to his own. He felt in no mood for Dennis—or for any other girl for that matter. He was completely in love with Stanley and now that he had left her he did not want to break the emotional wave-lengths that he felt were somehow still binding them together. To see Dennis, to talk to her, would do this.

But he had promised her that he would drop in at the apartment, and with Drew, oddly enough, a promise was a promise. Delightfully unscrupulous about many things, he seldom if ever broke his word to a woman—when it merely involved the keeping of an appointment. Ridiculously punctilious about little things, he could be utterly disingenuous about bigger, more important issues. He had never hesitated to break a woman's heart when it no longer interested him, but it would never have occurred to him to break an appointment, even when it was distasteful to keep it.

So he rode up in a smoothly gliding elevator and rang the bell of Dennis' smart studio-apartment at exactly six-fifteen.

"Hello—all alone?" He tossed his gloves and hat onto a table, crossed the long room and bending over her, kissed her lightly on the mouth.

She sank deeper into dull velvet pillows, put her cigarette back between her lips. "I don't believe I like you to kiss me any more, Drew," she decided in her cool, slurring voice. "It's too sort of over and done with—I've never found it exactly satisfactory to kiss a person lightly after one has experienced with more ardent caresses."

Drew shrugged, smiled a little. "Just as you say, Dennis—we aim to please." He walked over to a table, picked up a bottle of Scotch and poured some liquor into a glass. "Mind if I have a drink? It's my first today."

"Help yourself. There were cocktails but the crowd finished them." She flicked her eyes at a litter of glasses scattered about on the high mantle and the piano.

Drew mixed another drink for her, brought them over to where she still slouched against huge amber pillows. "Well—here's looking at you!"

They looked into each other's eyes, drank slowly. He sat down beside her on the divan.

"You're an amazingly handsome thing," Dennis told him, staring at him thoughtfully. "Quite the most alluring male I have ever gazed upon. Where did you come from—who are you, anyway, Drew?"

He lifted his eyebrows at her, screwed his eyes into an amused grin. "What do you want—the story of a sad young life? You embarrass me, my dear!"

"Not you," retorted Dennis coolly. "I don't believe you could be embarrassed. Drew—you're much too self-possessed. But seriously, just who are you?"

"I'm one Drew Armitage," he drawled quietly, "thirty-two years old, white and unmarried. I graduated from Amherst in the class of twenty-two—and since then—"

"Since then I know all about it. You're a broker—attractive, therefore successful. What I don't know is before then—before Amherst—"

"Why this sudden interest in me, beloved?" Drew smiled at her but his eyes were curious.

"I've been thinking about you—since last night. I've been wondering—"

"Don't, my dear, it will never get you anywhere."

"You mean you don't intend to tell me?"

"About my past? Certainly I'll tell you. Why shouldn't it? It's no particular secret. My father was an actor—a bit of a rotter, I imagine, but a handsome devil. My mother was a dancer—in a rash moment they married and the result was me." Drew sobered a bit. "My father was killed shortly after I arrived on the scene and the next ten years were pretty bad. Eventually Claire, my mother, came back to New York, married again and we had things easy for a while. I got a college education out of it and a lot of very expensive ideas—then the old guy dropped dead one day leaving everything in a devil of a mess. That was right after I graduated. Claire had a small life insurance—but I was out in the cold cruel world with nothing but my handsome face. I had some very good friends though they offered me several different positions. I took a job with Johnny Crampton's firm in Chicago, then last fall he brought me on here."

Drew paused, a slight smile playing about his mouth. "And that, my dear, is the story of my sad, young life."

"I might add, he went on, lighting a cigarette, "that Claire has married again—a filthy rich old piker who can't see me at all and all the consolation I get from the lovely but slightly dilapidated Claire is 'go thou, and do likewise!'"

"And you are going to?" Dennis reached out and took the cigarette from between his lips and placed it between her own.

Drew flipped open his cigarette case. "I suppose so—eventually. It's the obvious thing, isn't it?"

"I expect it is for a man like you."

"Don't think much of me, do you, Dennis?" He smiled straight into her eyes, defying her to admit it.

She laughed huskily. "I think you're wonderful, Drew. I think you're grand! But—haven't you any moral scruples at all?"

"Moral scruples?" Drew wrinkled his brow in puzzled thought. "I don't believe so, Dennis, what are they? They sound so terribly unattractive. Anyhow I'm quite sure I haven't any."

"But you have about everything else—everything that a woman wants in a man—well, I don't suppose you could have everything."

Dennis considered him reflectively. "Picked her out yet, Drew?"

"What? Who? Oh, you mean the girl—why, no—I don't believe I have—"

He returned her glance coolly, his eyes telling her nothing. If Dennis thought she was going to draw Stanley into the discussion, she was mistaken. Drew had no intention of speaking of her—then he ever if he could prevent it.

Perhaps he thought, a bit surprised, he did have moral scruples after all! The thought was a bit perplexing. He dismissed it as requiring too much effort to follow up.

"I see—well, I don't suppose you're in any hurry about it—"

"Can't say that I am—I find life a very pleasant thing just as it is."

"Yes, I expect you do. I wish I knew what it was about you, Drew, that makes women love you so."

"I think," replied Drew gravely, "that it must be because I love them so—"

He grinned audaciously, drew himself to his feet. "Well, I've got to be running along darling."

"Must you?"

Drew looked down at her speculatively. Two months ago he would have stayed—nothing could have induced him to leave her. He had been rather badly in love with Dennis two months ago. Now he felt nothing more for her than a real admiration for her really astonishing, rather tawny beauty. "Yes, my dear, I must."

"Very well." She accepted his decision unprotestingly. "Run in again won't you?"

"I'll do that, Dennis."

He picked up his hat, slid his gloves through his fingers. "You know, Dennis—you're a lot like me you know when a thing is ended and you accept it—gracefully."

"Yes," Dennis agreed with him, her eyes long and cool between golden lashes. "I've found it's much the best way—what it saves in wear and tear on the nervous system—"

She shrugged, tossed her cigarette into a copper bowl. "Thanks for dropping in, Drew—it's always nice to see you—"

He stared at her a moment, his eyes undecided. "I believe we agreed to waive the—farewell kiss?"

"Yes—it's out from now on."

"Well—good-bye." Drew slung his hat on his dark head, pulled it a bit over one eye.

"Good-bye." Dennis snuggled deeper into her amber pillows, smiled at him through half-closed lashes.

He went out, closing the door softly behind him.

One of the first people who called Stanley during the following week was Marcia Wingate. Marcia was two years older than Stanley and had been married, with a good deal of expense, publicity and what-not, the winter Stanley had come out.

Stanley had, in fact, been one of the twelve bridesmaids. She had looked very young and quite lovely in primrose taffeta, her arms full of tea roses and lilies-of-the-valley. She had wondered how all brides always managed to look so like frightened madonnas and had not forgotten to smile once at Perry, who was looking very immaculate and important as best man.

Now Marcia had been married three years, had accumulated two houses, three cars and half a dozen servants. To say nothing of one child. And she was inviting Stanley to dinner. "Very informal, darling," she told her, over the telephone. "Just a few old friends and a few new ones. I'm asking Drew Armitage for you—that's as it should be, isn't it?"

Stanley agreed that it was.

It was nice, she thought, that people had such a pleasant way of taking things for granted. She, herself, couldn't do it so easily. She had not yet come to accept Drew casually, and her feeling for him. She doubted if she ever would.

She decided to wear a new, very slim and fragile dinner dress and hoped that Drew would send orchids. (To Be Continued)

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

STRAWBERRIES are so plentiful that they are being sold at little greater cost than in the height of their summer season. Enjoy this winter treat while it lasts.

California navel oranges are at the height of their short season and they are particularly delicious to eat out of hand or in salads or desserts. For breakfast juice, Florida oranges are fine. Grapefruit continues plentiful.

Spinach and green beans are abundant and cheap. Broccoli though fine and inexpensive is not being used so much as it was. Cauliflower and new cabbage are cheap. Peas continue plentiful and good. Beets and carrots are particularly economical.

With Lent in the near future, favorite meat dishes should be enjoyed now though well cooked and seasoned fish is equally good.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following menus for your Sunday dinner.

Low Cost Dinner

Pan-browned Chopped Beef
Mashed Potatoes
Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Vanilla Junket with Preserves
Tea or Coffee

Medium-Cost Dinner

Chicken Pie with Biscuit Crust
Baked Sweet Potatoes or Yams
Buttered Broccoli
Hot Biscuits
Strawberry Whip with Crushed Strawberries
Coffee

Very Special Dinner

Tomato Juice Cocktail
Baked Smoked Ham or Roast Chicken

SALVATION ARMY'S PARIS RECEPTION IS A GALA AFFAIR

By Nadia de Beaud (I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)
PARIS—(INS)—I noted at the recent big reception of the Salvation Army here many very smart women, for this is a much favored charity. Among the patronesses was Mrs. Arnaud Faure, the former Constance Hart of San Francisco, who wore one of the new close fitting fur capes, which give women this season an old fashioned silhouette that is charming. Her gown of brown velvet, of walking length, had long sleeves, and over this she had a short mink cape. A brown velvet hat tilted well off the face, completed the ensemble.

The tea was organized by the Countess M. Tolstoy, who was a Miss Frothingham, known for her unusual war work. She wore a conservatively cut mink coat.

SON ARRIVES

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Culligan, Bath street, are the parents of a son born last week. Mrs. Culligan will be remembered as Miss Marjorie Brady.

A CHRISTENING

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holden, Buckley street, had their son christened in St. Mark's Catholic Church, Sunday. The baby has been named Walter and sponsors were Fletcher Holden and Mary Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mathis, Binghamton, N. Y., spent Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George LaRue, Bristol Township.

Honeymoon Tragedy

Wearing trousers, Mrs. Anna May Edouard is pictured at Burlington, N. J., county jail after she had been ordered held for questioning in connection with the death of her husband, Millard Stefan-Edouard, former Turko-Franco secret service agent. Mrs. Edouard, married only thirteen days, said her husband shot himself in her car. They were touring from Los Angeles.

ST. ANN'S BEWILDERS KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

(By T. M. Juno)

Flashing a scoring attack which completely bewildered the Knights of Columbus team, the St. Ann's A. A. quintet took undisputed possession of first place in the Bristol Basketball League last night, defeating the Casseys, 42-30.

From the opening tap-off until the time when "Doc" Potts pulled the trigger on the gun which ended the game there was no question as to the outcome of the game. The Saints outplayed and outpassed the Knights in all styles of playing.

Each of the players on the St. Ann's quintet shared in the scoring orgy. The players performed in the best style exhibited this season and made shots from all angles of the court. The usual backcourt passing of the winning aggregation was missing last night and more time was devoted to short passes which led to most of the counting.

UPPER MORELAND TEAM PLAYS HERE TONIGHT

By Jack Orr

Tonight on the high school floor the Bristol High basketball team will attempt to defeat the strong Upper Moreland quintet. In the game played at Willow Grove earlier in the season, Coach Dougherty's boys managed to win 24-23 and the boys from Upper Moreland will be trying to win back their prestige.

The Upper Moreland five will be led by "Sammy" Randall who went on a scoring spree in the previous meeting of the teams and scored 12 points. "Joe" Jensen, rangy center of the purple and gold, is another scoring threat and will have to be watched closely.

In the first game of the evening Coach Ruth Diemer's sextet will attempt to come through with their fifth consecutive victory at the expense of the Upper Moreland girls. In their previous meeting at Willow Grove the Red and Gray won 35-20. The tap-off will be at 7:30 sharp.

HIBERNIANS NOSE OUT LAST YEAR'S CHAMPIONS

By T. M. Juno

The Y. M. A. and the Hibernians staged a thrilling and exciting opening game on the Italian Mutual Aid Court last night with the Hibernians nosing out the 1932 champions by the close score of 37-25.

A rally by the Big Green in the last four minutes of playing upset the dope in the match as the Radcliffe street boys had held a margin from the second quarter until the spurt.

At the time the Dolanmen started their rally, the Red and White team possessed a lead of 35-30. "Joie" Sascavitz gave the Corson Streeters a point and then followed with a double-decker under the net. Dougherty added a foul and the score was 35-34. Sascavitz then put the Hibs into the lead with a field goal and before it was over Donnelly made a foul which made the final count read 37-25.

Soviet Balloon Establishes Record

gondola. It is similar to the Red Army's stratosphere craft "Stratostat U. S. S. R." in which three army experts ascended 19 kilometers (11.8 miles) last September 30, reaching the greatest height ever attained by man.

The "Osoviakhim" was under command of M. Fedoseenko, noted Soviet aeronaut. With him were his assistant, M. Onyskin, and the balloon's constructor, M. Vasenko.

The trio took off at 5:40 a. m. G. M. T. (12:40 a. m. E. S. T.), in the presence of a few military and civil aviation authorities at Osoviakhim Air-drome at the village of Mazilov, near Kounzevo, about eight miles from Moscow.

Great precautions were taken to keep the ascent a secret until it was entirely over, the civil aviation authorities being anxious to avoid the publicity that attended the army balloon's ascent last year and the present craft's unsuccessful attempt to take off a few days later.

The International News Service correspondent, however, learned privately of plans for the flight and, to the obvious consternation of officials, arrived at the airport to witness the ascent.

Sellersville Work

Halted For Time

and ceilings of the grade school buildings in Sellersville and Perkaskie are to be temporarily laid off.

In Sellersville the painters have only been allowed to work fifteen hours per man each week while in Perkaskie they have been on the job twenty-four hours. This is fixed according to the population.

Edgar Mood, Perkaskie, timekeeper for the project, went to Bristol as usual to draw the checks, but found that there were none available for this week. The reason the money was exhausted so quickly was because the wages were raised from 60 cents to $1.20 and each man was given the difference in pay dating from the time the job started last December.

On the 750 man hours allotted for completion of the project, 532 have been used. If the remaining money is available and work begins again, the men will be occupied until the middle of March.

In the meantime another Federal project will have been begun here, when bids for enlargement of the Sellersville catch basin and construction of a new filter plant are awarded. This is expected to start some time during February and will continue well into the Summer months. It will put approximately fifty local men to work and indirectly will give employment to more than twice that number.

The new ruling about increasing pay has not affected the project of the Sellersville-Perkaskie Consolidated School under track and parking space. The joint board has already used 3300 of the 7200 man hours allotted, and the track is almost completed.

Thursday a carload of cinders arrived for the track. A trench one foot deep and four feet wide has been dug and boards are being put in to keep the cinders packed tight. The track, hockey field, etc., will probably be finished late in March so that the students will be able to indulge in Spring athletic activities with proper equipment.

Dillinger Gang in the Toils

Fighting for Life

Portrait study of Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, comely gynecologist, who is on trial at Greenwood, Miss., on a charge of poisoning to death Dr. John P. Kennedy, a former colleague. The prosecution's trump card is an alleged death bed accusation purported to have been made by Dr. Kennedy.

"Carte Blanche"

"Fill in your own amount," is, in effect, what the management of the Boston Braves said to "Rabbit" Maranville, 42-year-old shortstop, in giving him a blank contract. "Rabbit" signed, and President Emil Fuchs declared he probably would have offered $1,500 more than the modest shortstop demanded.

Threats Can't Scare Mary

Making light of the mysterious kidnap scare that caused Boston authorities to assign her a bodyguard, Mary Pickford arrives at New York, where she declared her belief that the whole thing was caused by "fanatics." However, "America's Sweetheart" is taking no chances, for she is closely guarded in her New York hotel.

What is a G. P. A. to do?

BIG BUSINESS has its laboratories and its bureau of standards where products submitted to General Purchasing Agents may be tested searchingly. But Big Business has not all the intelligent G. P. A.'s, nor has it any monopoly on big purchases.

The women of this country make eighty-five per cent of all retail purchases—and they influence the rest. They are G. P. A.'s for 25 million independent businesses, the households of America. Without charts, graphs, or laboratories, how are they to buy efficiently? How are they to be sure of securing honest, wholesome products for use by their families?

Their guide is advertising in the daily paper. They realize, sensibly enough, that the merchants of their town talk to them truthfully in advertisements. They watch these pages for news of advantageous purchases. They welcome the new or better product when informed of it through advertising.

The merchants and manufacturers who use this newspaper realize that your patronage, not only this year but next, is the life of their businesses. They test and criticize and study merchandise more rigorously than you ever could. You may read their advertisements with confidence. Guided by them, you may buy efficiently!

Any one can spend money — the reader of advertisements spends wisely
